

A little bit about...

PATRICIA WEARTH

Pat went West Texas State University where she received her Bachelor of Science then went on to receive her Masters of Science from University of Utah. She used that degree to teach Math at Pampa High School, Frank Phillips Junior College, Wichita Falls High School, and Vernon College.

She began to develop an interest in painting and started taking decorative painting classes with Georgann Self in the mid 1980's. Pat was a member of the North Texas Tole Chapter and served in various offices. She has attended many seminars and conventions for decorative painting since then as there is always room to learn! Pat began taking Prismacolor classes over fifteen years ago and continues to do so today. Janelle Johnson is a nationally known teacher and has taught most of the seminars that Pat has gone to. Today, Pat uses her skills as a teacher combined with her artistic skills to teach Prismacolor pencil classes at Georgann's and the Kemp Center for the Arts!
